

Aria Finger

Chief Operating Officer of
DoSomething.org

As Chief Operating Officer of DoSomething.org, Aria Finger oversees the marketing, programmatic, and business development activities at DoSomething.org, the national not-for-profit that empowers millions of teenagers to take action around causes they are passionate about. Finger has spoken at numerous conferences, including What Teens Wants, extGen:Charity, Sustainable Brands, the YPulse Mashup and most recently at the World Economic Forum in Davos.

Aria earned a BA in economics and political science from Washington University in St. Louis, and completed the Executive Program for Nonprofit Leaders at the Stanford University Graduate School of Business. She reads economic theory for fun, loves vanilla cupcakes, and thinks that "After Innocence" should be required movie-watching for anyone interested in social justice.

Aria currently serves on the board of the NYC-based not-for-profit Care for the Homeless, is a New Leaders Council NYC Fellow, and is an adjunct professor at New York University.
